

Day One is an ongoing and moving project.

Founded 14 years ago, Day One has continued growing and has established itself as a reference among its clients: professional services firms and corporate functions. Working with us, your ideas will always be welcome. A project needs dedicated and innovative people to stay lively and forward-thinking. Are you different? Then maybe you're next.

Your skills

The position requires an equal mix of business acumen, data analysis skills and creativity. The ideal candidate will have a strong work ethic, positive and constructive attitude and be very comfortable in interacting with Leadership and implementing strategic decisions and analysis.

- 1-2 years of experience with market research or strategy analysis in a business
- Must thrive in a fast paced environment and be able to work independently
- Law firm or other professional service experience is a plus
- Excellent project management, organizational and planning skills
- Ability to prioritize multiple projects, meet deadlines and coordinate own work
- Fluent in english

Behind organizations, there are people.

We don't consider Day One just a structure, but rather a group of people with connections and a strong sense of commitment. Respect is one of our core values: we believe that team spirit and collaboration are key for team members to be able to efficiently balance professional and personal life.

Your mission

Fully integrated in a dynamic team of 7 people, your role will be to drive projects on both client work and business development work. We have a large panel of missions ranging from strictly operational to strategic ones. Moreover you will contribute to the preparation of Day One thought leadership production such as market surveys, white papers, articles.

A large part of the work is to analyze, summarize and present complex data. Accustomed to working in Excel, and PowerPoint is thus a plus. Day One is a small business that is expanding, and with this you will have a great opportunity to grow with us.

Our clients are International. So are we.

Recent developments have led Day One to open offices abroad. Our offering covers very diverse markets, so we need people with an international background, preferably having already lived abroad. Fluent English is required. Knowledge of other languages is a big plus.

Are you ?

- Fluent spoken and written English is mandatory, the mastering of another language would be appreciated
- International experience

If you think that you are deemed to be part of the team, send us elements proving how far you can go:

career@dayone-consulting.com

